

THE MONSTER PROJECT

The Monster Project (<https://themonsterproject.org>) was a program my high school graphic design class participated in where we collected monster drawings from a neighboring elementary school and redrew as many as possible. Afterwards, we got the drawings (printed out if it was done digitally) and went back to the school to give each kid their corresponding art.

We ended up making a slideshow as well to compile everything for both classes' reference, and the above work is the title card we used for it. This was the first monster I drew for the project (pictured below) that my teacher asked if I could add the title of the project to.

Below are all the different monsters I drew, along with their corresponding kid's drawings (unfortunately, I couldn't find a couple of the reference drawings, but most of them are included here)
